Retrospective/Revise of Existing Regulations—A Focus on Burden Reduction; Request for Public Input

AGENCY: Office of the General Counsel, DHS.

ACTION: Notice of Retrospective Review Initiative and request for comments.

SUMMARY: The Department of Homeland Security (Department or DHS) is seeking comments from the public on specific existing significant DHS regulations that the Department should consider as candidates for streamlining or repeal. These efforts will help ensure that DHS satisfies its statutory obligations and achieves its regulatory objectives without imposing unwarranted costs.

DHS is seeking this input pursuant to the process identified in DHS's Final Plan for the Retrospective Review of Existing Regulations. According to the Final Plan, DHS will initiate its retrospective review process, on a three-year cycle, by seeking input from the public. Input that will be most helpful to DHS in input that identifies specific regulations and includes actionable data supporting the revision of specific regulations for retrospective review.

DATE: Written comments are requested on or before November 10, 2016. Late-filed comments will be considered to the extent practicable.

ADDRESS: You may submit comments, identified by docket number DHS-2016-0072, through the Federal eRulemaking Portal: http://www.regulations.gov. Follow the instructions for submitting comments.

II. Background

On January 18, 2011, the President issued Executive Order 13563, “Improving Regulation and Regulatory Review,” to ensure that Federal regulations are more affordably, less intrusive means to achieve policy goals and that agencies give careful consideration in the benefits and costs of those regulations. 76 FR 8361. The Executive Order required each Executive Branch agency to develop a preliminary plan to periodically review its existing regulations and determine whether any regulations should be modified, streamlined, expanded, or repealed so as to make the agency’s regulatory program more effective or less burdensome in achieving its regulatory objectives.

DHS's approach to conducting retrospective review focuses on public openness and transparency and on the critical role of public input in conducting retrospective review. To that end, DHS published a notice and request for comments in the Federal Register on March 14, 2011, 76 FR 15326. In that notice, DHS solicited public input on how DHS should structure its retrospective review and which DHS rules would benefit from retrospective review.

On June 6, 2016, DHS published a notice of availability for the Final Plan for the Retrospective Review of Existing Regulations. 79 FR 33311. DHS considered this public input as it developed a Final Plan.

On August 22, 2016, DHS issued its Final Plan for the Retrospective Review of Existing Regulations (Draft Plan or DHS Final Plan). The DHS Final Plan is available online at http://www.dhs.gov/xfinity/assets/dhs-ogc-final-retrospective-review-plan-08-22-16-final.pdf. The Final Plan established a three-year cycle to review regulations to determine whether any regulations should be modified, streamlined, expanded, or repealed so as to make the agency’s regulatory program more effective or less burdensome in achieving its regulatory objectives.

DHS continues to evaluate its regulatory program for rules that are candidates for retrospective review. DHS does so through legally mandated retrospective review requirements (e.g., Unified Agenda reviews) and reviews under section 610 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act and through other informal and long-established mechanisms (e.g., use of Advisory Councils, feedback from DHS field personnel, input from internal working groups, and outreach to regulated entities). This Federal Register notice supplements these existing extensive DHS retrospective review efforts.
